September 3, 2026

The UBA Society of Maharaja Surajmal Institute of Technology, in collaboration with the Agam Shree Foundation and Lions Club, organised an Organ Donation Awareness Drive for members of the UBA Society. The event was held in Seminar Hall 206 at MSIT from 10:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m.

Opening and Welcome

The event commenced roughly five to ten minutes after its scheduled start, with UBA members Harpreet Kaur and Tamanna taking charge as hosts for the proceedings. They began by warmly breaking the ice with the audience, setting an engaging and welcoming tone for the two hours ahead. The hosts then walked the gathering through the objectives of the drive, spoke briefly on why the topic held such significance for the college community, and formally introduced each of the dignitaries and chief guests present, extending a gracious welcome to the representatives of the Agam Shree Foundation and Lions Club before handing the floor over to the first speaker.

Awareness Session by Agam Shree Foundation

Mr. Anuj from the Agam Shree Foundation took the stage next, engaging the audience in a lively and interactive session on addiction and substance dependence. Speaking in an approachable, conversational style that kept the audience attentive throughout, he began by discussing how people frequently neglect or actively harm their own bodies through habits such as substance abuse, even as countless critically ill patients around the world wait, often in vain, for a vital organ. Drawing out this irony, he encouraged listeners to reflect on the true value of good health and healthy organs. Building on this foundation, he then transitioned into the central theme of the drive, walking the audience through the crucial medical distinction between natural death and brain death, and explaining in clear, accessible terms why understanding this difference is essential to understanding how and when organ donation becomes possible.

Keynote Address by the Chief Guest

Mr. Anuj then invited the chief guest, Dr. Naresh Kumar Goyal (MBBS, MD, DM Cardiology – AIIMS), on stage to deliver the keynote address on the clinical aspects of organ donation. Drawing on his experience in the field of cardiology, Dr. Goyal explained the different forms organ donation can take, distinguishing between live organ donation carried out while a donor is alive and donation that follows a confirmed diagnosis of brain death. He walked the audience through the medical safeguards that govern deceased donation, and stressed the urgent and continuing need for more people to register as deceased organ donors, underlining how a single registration carries the potential to save or transform multiple lives. His address lent the session considerable clinical credibility and gave the audience a grounded, expert perspective on a subject often clouded by myths and misinformation.

Interactive Role-Play

To keep the session interactive and engaging, Mr. Anuj invited four student volunteers on stage to enact a short hospital simulation role-play. The scenario depicted a hospital setting in which a patient had recently passed away, and a family member of another critically ill patient gently approached the grieving family to speak about organ donation, appealing to them for the need to give a fellow patient a fighting chance at life and to spare another family the pain of loss. Through their performance, the volunteers illustrated just how sensitive and delicate such conversations can be, and how compassion, patience, and honesty, even in the most painful moments, can help a grieving family find the courage to consent and, in doing so, offer hope to a family they may never meet.

Theatrical Performance by AARAMBH

Continuing the momentum of the session, Aarambh, the dramatic society of MSIT, staged a powerful and emotionally charged play centred on a character named Rajeev, who loses his father at a young age simply because no donor could be found in time. Deeply moved by this loss, Rajeev pledges that he will not let another family suffer the same fate, and resolves to donate his own organs after his demise. His final act ultimately saves the life of a father and husband, in turn preserving the happiness of an entire family he never gets to meet. The performance built steadily towards a dramatic, poignant monologue that laid bare the systemic gaps in organ donation awareness in the country, delivered with a rawness and intensity that visibly moved the audience, and closed with a direct and urgent call to action, appealing to every viewer to consider organ donation for themselves.

Informative Speeches

Following the skit, Mr. Anuj continued to steer the drive forward, inviting a few more representatives from the Agam Shree Foundation, including an alumnus of the MSIT ECE Department, to deliver short, focused speeches. These talks shone a light on specialised aspects of donation that are often overlooked in mainstream conversations around the subject, such as corneal or eye donation, tissue and skin donation, and full-body donation for medical research and education. Each speaker brought a distinct perspective to the discussion, helping the audience appreciate the full breadth of what organ and body donation can mean, well beyond the commonly discussed vital organs.

Interactive Quiz

The drive then moved towards its concluding activities with a fun and lively interactive quiz segment hosted by the foundation team. Questions ranged from thought-provoking ethical dilemmas around consent and eligibility to specific, factual questions about organ donation, prompting eager participation from members of the audience. Those who answered correctly were rewarded with stress-relief smiley balls, a small but well-received touch that kept the atmosphere light and energetic while quietly reinforcing the key learnings from the session.

The Gratitude Wall

Before the closing activity began, Ms. Sudesh Pehal, Coordinator of the UBA Society, delivered a heartfelt vote of thanks to the guests and dignitaries, and presented them with mementos as a token of appreciation for their support of the drive. To bring the event to a close, UBA team members and guest representatives from the Agam Shree Foundation and Lions Club came together at a specially designated "Gratitude Wall," where each of them took a moment to note down their thoughts, reflections, and experiences from the drive in their own words. The Gratitude Wall now stands as a cherished souvenir, preserved carefully in the UBA archives as a memory of the drive and everyone who helped make it possible.

The Pledge

The Organ Donation Awareness Drive proved to be a resounding success, bringing together medical experts, social organisations, and student volunteers around a cause of profound human significance. Through a thoughtful blend of expert insight, interactive role-play, and moving theatrical storytelling, the event held the audience's attention from start to finish and left a lasting emotional impression. The session by Dr. Naresh Kumar Goyal lent the drive credibility and clinical depth, while the student's performance and the hospital simulation translated complex medical decisions into deeply human moments, helping participants connect with the cause on a personal level. The quiz segment ensured active engagement, while the Gratitude Wall gave attendees a meaningful way to reflect on what they had learned.

The drive reached its most powerful moment when the entire seminar hall rose together to take a collective, spoken pledge in support of organ donation, a single, unified voice affirming everything the talks, testimonies, and theatre had built towards over the previous two hours. Beyond Seminar Hall 206, the drive succeeded in its larger purpose: dismantling myths around organ donation, encouraging deceased donor registrations, and inspiring a new generation of socially conscious student leaders to carry this message forward into their communities.
